Can’t trill your r’s? Find English sounds creeping into your Spanish? Having trouble understanding your new Spanish teacher? Learning Spanish pronunciation takes guidance and focused practice. Just think, would anyone expect you to learn to play the guitar by just listening to it? Although very different animals, playing the guitar and sounding like a native Spanish speaker both require detailed instruction. As you get better, your confidence in speaking rises, your comprehension goes up, and you will start to detect and appreciate the variation in the pronunciation of Spanish by speakers across the Spanish-speaking world.

Not bad for one course!

In this course you will learn…

➔ to better your Spanish pronunciation eliminating hard-to-shakie English sounds
➔ the fundamentals of production and perception of Spanish sounds
➔ To develop an awareness of dialectal variation in the Spanish-speaking world